COOLIDGE'S ANNOUNCEMENT

The heavy thinkers of the metropolitan press are now engaged in an attempt to interpret the statement of President Coolidge. "I do not choose to be a candidate for President in 1928." It does not require much "interpretation." The President considers the presidential nomination, as between being and not being a candidate he makes a choice. That choice is against being a candidate.

With the nomination in his grasp, it is not probable that President Coolidge, were he insouciant in his determination as has been intimated, would have opened the Pandora's box of numerous rival candidacies. It is possible, of course, that as the result of many such candidacies, the next Republican national convention may fall into such a deadlock that the call of duty may be sounded to President Coolidge—but that contingency seems so remote that it is very doubtful if it entered into the President's calculations.

The announcement of the President at least insures a lively political season as soon as the dog days are over. More than twenty men have been mentioned for the Democratic presidential nomination. As many will be mentioned for the Republican nomination. Probably a dozen will start. It will be a lively contest, and may be the best man win.

AMERICAN OPPORTUNITY

A Georgia negro, who had been a slave in his youth, died at Atlanta recently leaving an estate of a million dollars, and what is still better, the esteem of all who had known him regardless of race.

He started as a barber in his early twenties and his industry and courteous manners won him the respect of his white customers who steadily grew in number. When he died he had many outside interests but retained his original shop which had grown from a one-man affair to one requiring the services of forty-two men. And this colored capitalist had more than seven hundred negroes working for him in one capacity or another at the time of his death.

There ought to be a lesson for all of us in this man's career. He did not have the priceless heritage of American liberty at the time of his birth. But by using industry and sound judgment coupled with courtesy and attendance to business he was able to make a success of his life under what to most of us would appear to be insurmountable difficulties.

The life of this negro is only another evidence of what can be done in America. Even the "humblest" child may later in life win some sort of success by proper attention to business. The qualities most required are honesty, industry, a reasonable amount of intelligence, and by staying on the job.

Opportunities are greater in America now than ever before. The country is expanding and developing in a way that was undreamed of a few years ago. All of this expansion and development means new opportunities for American youth.

Surely if a man born in slavery, with the handicap of color can win his way to success, there is no reason why the average American youth should feel afraid.

Farm Bureau Notes

R. D. Bailey, Co. Agricultural Agent

"The farming of the future must be done by men of broad training."
—Dean Alfred Vivian, Author of "First Principles of Soil Fertility."

Good Mark to Aim At

Mr. George Annis told the county agent on the 25th of June, that he was milking 15 cows, and would have two more cows fresh in a few days. He incidentally added that he raised enough hay to winter the whole herd, the young stock and the horses.

That's something like it for size of dairy herd and for raising your own roughage instead of paying out all you can rake and scrape for it. Keep that hay money.

We may add that Mr. Annis is a believer in and a user of ensilage and alfalfa hay. About this time in 1926 he plowed under a big field of second growth sweet clover, after having made hay of the first crop.

Good Home Improvements

At "Birchwood," the Eldorado farm home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Stevens, a Delco lighting system, a modern cement-septic tank have recently been installed, largely by home labor. A good start in purebred dairy cattle has been made, too. Is this to be the last, and only farm to put in home conveniences?

There are lots of things that we are not "too poor" to do on the farm.

Dragged It Thoroughly

On the State Demonstration Farm at Grayling, we dragged the alfalfa stubble with a spring-tooth drag, set rather deep, as soon as the hay was removed. Then we had it dragged at right angles to the first dragging.

You ought to see how it improved the looks of that field of alfalfa.

We figure that each time we thoroughly drag an alfalfa field, we give that field an extra year to live, on account of giving the in-cropping June grass a set-back.

Silo

With corn looking the way it does, I guess that those who have silos will be glad that they have them, and others will wish they had one.

It isn't too late to get a silo, yet. This county could well stand several more. Who will lead off?

Last Week

Last week we sent to each farmer in the county a postal card that ought to be a reminder to do a good thing for the stock, the pocketbook and the farm. It reads as follows:

Alfalfa or Sweet Clover

Let us all sow alfalfa or sweet clover, on or before August 15. After that, we are not sure of growth enough to carry the crop through winter. Try even half an acre if not situated to try more. A half-acre of alfalfa, sowed now, will make ideal pasture next summer for a brood sow and her pigs. Alfalfa leaves are splendid in winter hen feed. Try a small piece for them. If you fear that the trial place needs lime, and you lack it, liberal use of acid phosphate fertilizer will help the case a lot. The Farmers' Warehouse still has some. See O. B. Scott in Burton Hotel, Grayling, for it and seed. Use 10 pounds seed per acre and inoculate it. A little piece of sweet clover started now will be splendid pasture next summer. Let's have every farmer get started in alfalfa and sweet clover.

The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture States

(1) That last year the railroads of our country purchased ninety-three million, seven hundred fifty-nine thousand ties at a cost of one hundred one million dollars.

(2) That the annual farm property loss from lightning may easily be estimated at twenty million dollars a year. This loss can, in large measure, be prevented by proper lightning rods. The cost of lightning protection is more than justified when the added personal safety and avoidance of temporary deprivation, as well as the saving of property, are considered.

(3) Bacterial wilt causes many alfalfa stands to die out.

(4) More than 500,000 farmers market grain cooperatively.

Trench and Pit Silos
The county agent has a bulletin showing how to make trench and pit silos. Do you want to borrow it? The bulletin says: "The trench silo has been in use for centuries and there are thousands being constructed every fall, so there is no experiment about them."

Ten Ways To Go Broke

The Agricultural College of Tennessee has suggested the following ways for a man to go broke farming. They are not guaranteed except for Tennessee, but we'll bet a cookie they will work up here.

1. Grow only one crop.
2. Keep no livestock.
3. Regard chickens and a garden as nuisances.
4. Take everything from the soil and return nothing.

5. Don't stop gulches or grow cover crops; let the top soil wash away, then you will have "bottom land."
6. Don't plan your farm operations. It's hard work thinking—trust to luck.

7. Regard your woodland as you would a coal mine; cut every tree, sell the timber, and wear out the cleared land by cultivating it in corn.

8. Hold fast to the notion that the methods of farming employed by your grandfather are good enough for you.

9. Be independent—don't join with your neighbors in any form of cooperation.

10. Mortgage your farm for every dollar it will stand to buy things you would have cash to buy if you followed a good system of farming.

Where Good Dairy Bulls Go

One good dairy bull goes to block every eight minutes.

It is unfortunate for the dairy industry that good bulls are sent to the butcher along with the mediocre and scrubs when their service is no longer needed in the herd. A careful estimate, says Dr. J. C. McDowell, of the Federal Bureau of Dairy Industry, shows that really high-class dairy bulls are going to the butcher at the rate of one every eight minutes from daylight to dark every day in the year. How to stop this great slaughter and keep these bulls for a life-time of service is one of the great problems in dairying today.

A study of cow-testing records shows which are the good bulls and which the inferior ones. But, unfortunately, by the time these records are available most of these bulls have been slaughtered. Doctor McDowell says that it is of little use to learn how good a bull was after he is dead, so he is urging that some system of exchange be started at once among owners of well-bred bulls in order that such animals may be kept until their daughters have demonstrated their sire's true value.

Interesting Events In Grayling 25 Years Ago

OF THE AVALANCHE OF 25 YEARS AGO.

Thursday, August 7, 1902

Emil Kraus is home from Iowa for a two weeks vacation.

Miss Ray Levy of Detroit is visiting with the family of A. Kraus.

Miss May Guovin of Saginaw is a guest at the home of Thos. Nolan.

Archie Charron has the body of a fine house erected on Peninsula Avenue on the lot south of his father's.

Miss Julia Murphy of Midland is visiting the family of her uncle, J. S. Harrington.

It is said that John Rasmussen is planning to build a hotel and saloon in Johannesburg.

G. Anderson has begun the erection of a good residence on Chestnut street north of E. Ayres.

The schoolhouse is being thoroughly renovated for the opening of the coming school year.

Miss Althea McIntyre will be home from Big Rapids this week, and will enter the Normal School at Mount Pleasant for the full course.

There was over 250 bushels of huckleberries shipped from here last week, and will probably be over 500 this week.

Mrs. Arthur Brink and the children are visiting friends near Standish, and "Art" is going it alone. Needless to say he is cranky.

F. Burgess is very dignified in his movements, the effect of a fractured rib received while trying to lead a refractory steer.

Sheriff Owen located and secured a man last week who was wanted by the sheriff of Tuscola county for larceny.

Miss Anna Olson returned to her home in Grayling, Monday, after visiting Miss Gladys Kitchen for several weeks. —Lewiston Journal.

E. A. Keeler returned from Chicago last Tuesday from a short but pleasant visit with his daughter and family.

Mrs. W. M. Woodworth and daughter, Miss Louise, returned last Monday from a week's visit with friends in Lewiston.

A four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith of Maple Forest, who had been sick for several months, but who was thought to be getting well, was taken suddenly worse last week, and died the 24th inst. They received the sympathy of the community.

Rev. Gregersen of Ludington and Rev. Tarsen of Manistee will preach at the Danish Lutheran church on Sunday morning and Monday evening.

T. H. Dyarmond of Lewiston was in town Monday. He is prospecting for a location for a big cattle ranch, and he hopes may strike it in this county.

Everybody was glad Monday morning to see the smoke rolling out of the new stack at the big mill, and to hear the old whistle calling the men to work.

M. A. Bates' home is desolate this week, as his sisters, Kathrine and Agnes, have taken the two girls to visit their grandfather, J. K. Bates, of Maple Forest.

Miss Edith McIntyre has returned from a delightful visit at Three Rivers and the south part of the state. She is rested and ready for the opening of school.

Miss Mary Anderson, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Emma Martin, has left for a visit among friends in Dryden and Detroit, before returning to her home in Milwaukee.

Miss Emma Larson of Grayling was in the village Wednesday visiting the Misses Blanche and Maude Silsby. She departed yesterday for Houghton Lake, where she will visit at the big farm.—Roscommon News.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hanson and son are making his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hanson, a visit. J. L. can remain but two or three days, but Mrs. H. and "the boy" will remain until the last of September.

C. O. McCullough, M. Simpson, Rolla Brink, Hugh Oaks, and others of our citizens are off on the 4-day trip to O. O. S. excursion to East Jordan. They went by the Ward road and expect a big time.

As handsome a field of clover as one could find in Michigan, is on the "worthless plains" farm of H. Schreiber nine miles east of here, and he has a piece of oats which would soon reduce the exalted price of that grain if the crop in the state was equally as good.

During the thunder storm last week the south end of N. Michelson's big barn, near the cemetery, was splintered into kindling wood, electric wires were burned in the homes of L. P. Wright, W. P. Benskin, V. Salling, and C. T. Jerome, and several persons were severely shocked. No fires followed.

At a road roads convention recently a speaker said that the day will come when a bad road will be a disgrace to a community, when we would no more invite a friend to pass over such a road than we would invite him to an unclean room or to an unclean house and promptly call it "home."

Stewart Slicker has brought from his farm on the "worthless plains" near Cheney, a sample of his oat crop and for length of straw and amount of grain would be hard to beat, but what is better, the growth of clover, to which the land was seeded this year will average about a foot high and is a well high perfect stand. He ought to turn such worthless lands over to the Forestry Commission.

The nice thing about being a man is you don't have to stay home after you wish your head.

Rank Health With Three "R's" Is Plea

By MARIE K. JOHNSON

As an educational subject for children, health should hold equal rank with the three "R's" in the curriculum of public schools. Doctors declare that without healthy, sturdy body it is impossible for the child to have a healthy mind.

Marie K. Johnson.

Neglect of childhood defects may result in permanent physical impairment. Many childhood defects are directly to malnutrition. "Tired" school students especially need a variety of foods for at this age their growth is rapid. The protein or "building food" should be abundant for high school boys and girls. When they buy their lunch at school, high school pupils are apt to display a preference for chocolate sodas, cream puffs and candy. An appetizing luncheon put up at home is much to be preferred to the soft hot dog which might obtain at the corner stand near the school.

Meat is all right for the school luncheon but it should be put up in tempting form. If sliced thin it is more appetizing in sandwiches than if in thick pieces. Beverages or soups may be carried in thermos bottles but the bottles must be carefully washed and aired daily after using. Milk is recommended for an important place in the boy's or girl's diet because of its proteins, minerals, phosphorus and calcium necessary for the development of the body and in the case of calcium and phosphorus for the building of bone and teeth. Evaporated milk has come to favor as a health builder for children as well as adults because of removal of 9 per cent of the water it is rendered more than twice as rich in food value as ordinary milk and by a process called homogenizing more digestible than bottled market milk.

Crisp lettuce and celery, carefully washed and dried, may be so wrapped in oil paper that they will be fresh and in good condition at lunch time. Lettuce should not be used in sandwiches for wilted lettuce is almost indigestible.

Cranberry Cultivation

In the past hundred years the area planted to cranberries has been gradually extended until now there are about 30,000 acres under vines with chief centers in eastern Massachusetts, central and southern New Jersey, central and northern Wisconsin, southwestern Washington and northwestern Oregon.

Anger an Incentive

Anger of any kind is naturally a sign of failure in getting our own way and an incentive to push ahead to get it. Suspect their your judgment if angry and postpone the matter. It's safer.—Pickens County (Ark.) Herald.

Jack Rabbit Forced to Succumb to Auto

A western physician returning from a professional call across the country stirred up a Jack rabbit, says the Evansville Journal. The animal trotted along in front of the physician's undisturbed apparently while he was traveling 25 miles an hour. Here was a sporting chance to try out the runner made famous by Mark Twain. The physician speeded his car from 25 to 30 miles, and then to 35. The rabbit held its place in the road apparently enjoying the race at that pace. Then the doctor turned on the gas to a speed of 40 miles an hour. The rabbit held the road until it scudded the car was gaining upon it and then loped off into the brush at the side of the road. Thus it appears that the unknown speed of the famous animal has been established. Many a good hound dog has run itself almost to death in pursuit of a Jack rabbit before it would give up the chase. Even the greyhound has never been able to carry on with a Jack rabbit. It has taken an automobile to drive the Jack from the field in a race for speed. No doubt the Jack is wondering what sort of a dog has come into its field to defeat it in a trial of speed.

Gospel in Form That Appeals to Tibetans

Tibetan printed books are printed from wooden blocks on very fine buff-colored paper manufactured in the country from the bark of a certain shrub. The pages are long and narrow. They are not bound into a volume, but lie loosely one above another. When not in use the leaves are enclosed in two wooden slabs, which are often finely carved, and tied with silk ribbons. The whole is wrapped in a beautifully embroidered silk cover. The sacred books of Tibet, produced in this way are regarded with the greatest reverence. A lady missionary working on the borders of Tibet suggested to the British and Foreign Bible society that a part of the New Testament should be produced in Tibetan. "This," reports the society, "has now been done. St. Mark has assumed a dress which will make a strong appeal to the Tibetans. They will be led from the attractive appearance to the contents, which are still more attractive, and we hope that many of them will be led to the Lord himself."

The Willow Does

A Vancouver writer attempts to answer the question, "Do animals weep?" Certain poets describe a stag as doing so, but when pinned down they admit they have never seen a stag, either weeping or laughing. Virgil describes a horse that wept behind its master's back, but at a time long antedating that at which the writer lived. In short, there is no trustworthy evidence of the phenomenon. The weeping of animals would be improbable, if only because they do not comprehend what human beings are, and what they are doing well enough to grieve about it. The case of the crocodile is different. It might very reasonably break down and cry every time it realizes it is a crocodile.

Bring On Your Victims

"Well," said the bearded physician, "I find that you are suffering from an assorted crop of suppressed desires. You are also the fortunate possessor of three types of complexes: superior, inferior and ulterior. Your thyroid gland is slightly out of focus, while neurotically your reactions are very poor. I find definite traces of dual personality and chronic melancholia. You live in a dream world and are mixed up in two or six interlocking personalities. I think you are perfectly safe. Go ahead. No jury will convict you."

"Thanks, Doc," gratefully answered Hamlet. "Do you know where I can have a dagger sharpened?"

Coffined in Coconut

In Honolulu may be seen two coco-nut caskets, woven to represent to edify King Liliuokalani, who reigned over Hawaii in 1900 A. D. and his great grandson, Leno-kapa kohlili. Inside the caskets are the bones of the kings. Such coco-nut fiber caskets, shaped somewhat like an Egyptian mummy in case, are extremely rare. These were found in one of the ancient burial caves of Hawaii. The Hawaiians often secreted the bones of dead kings in inaccessible caves to prevent defilement by an enemy.

Herculean Viewpoint

A colored man who owned a large wagon and a small horse was hired to haul away some trash from a home. The trash contained many bricks and made an awkward load. As he was ready to drive away, the owner of the house said to him: "If you intend to haul such large loads you need a larger horse." The colored man replied: "If you had to lift him up every morning like I do, you would think he is heavy enough."

"Jingoism"

Jingo is supposed to be derived from the mountain soldiers of Basque, who were employed by Edward I in Wales. The common oath of these Basque soldiers was "by Jingo." The modern use of Jingo really dates from McDermott's music hall song of 1873, when war with Russia was threatening Great Britain. The first line of the song ran: "We don't want to fight, but by Jingo, if we do."

"When I get home and find your ma in an exceptionally good humor, with an exceptionally good dinner ready for me, I know it is a sign I'll have to shell out, and when I get home and find her looking like a thunderstorm it is a sign I'm gonna get hell before the evening is over."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

FOR 39 YEARS Dunlop has been building the world's supreme tire. Dunlops wear longer because Dunlop knows how to build better at each vital point.

Take the hidden carcass beneath the tread. Dunlop owns its own cotton mills for no other purpose than to spin the best long-fibre cotton into the famous cable-tread cord that goes into this carcass.

The extra strength in these cords means an added factor of safety against constant load and pounding of roads—longer life and greater mileage.

The extra "stretch" enables the carcass to give under severe blows, and to come back into its original position without internal injury.

The Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known—wears slowly and smoothly, making sure that you get out of your Dunlops all the extra mileage that added care and longer experience have built into them. We recommend that you put Dunlops on your car.

The Thoughtless Spark that Costs Millions

FIRE PREVENTION METHODS

1. Matches—Be sure your match is out. Break it in two before you throw it away.

2. Tobacco—Be sure that pipe ashes and cigar or cigarette stubs are properly disposed of. Never throw them into brush, leaves or needles.

3. Making Camp—Before building a fire, scrape away all inflammable material from a spot 3 feet in diameter. Dig a hole in the center and in it build your camp fire. Keep your fire small. Never build a camp fire in brush or near brush.

4. Breaking Camp—Never leave a fire burning when you are out of camp.

5. Brush Burning—Never burn brush or brush in windy weather, or when there is the slightest danger that the fire will get away.

No one would knowingly cause forest fires. Yet 725,928 acres of timber land were burned last year, in Michigan alone. Thoughtlessness caused practically all of it.

Every resident of Michigan and every visitor to Michigan enjoys and profits by Michigan's resources. And everybody loses when timber, one of the greatest of these resources, is destroyed.

Three great losses come from timber fires: (1) The timber loss itself, (2) the cost of fire suppression, (3) the loss of beauty.—wooded lands are despoiled of their attractiveness, and this in turn causes partial drying up of lakes and streams.

You can help by making these facts more widely understood. Then care will replace thoughtlessness. Our forests will be used and enjoyed but not destroyed.

RE UNCLE SAM'S GUEST THIS SUMMER

(By Erwin Greer, President Greer School of Electrical & Automotive Trades, Chicago, Ill.)

The automobile travel to the parks during the last few years has shown a steady and large growth.

A million is a lot of people. But the national parks are numerous, extensive and attractive. The prediction that one million motor tourists will this year go by automobile to visit our national playgrounds is not based only on hope or optimism, but upon facts.

Of course, you don't know how to go, where to go, what to take, how to do it.

But the National Parks people in Washington know, and they have a pleasant way of making it easy for you. Write them your hopes and they will tell you what to do.

"They will, for instance, send you booklets about the parks. These booklets contain all known information about the parks except the best kind of carburetor and how to run on the rim without destroying the inner tube. For instance, you want to go touring to Yellowstone. You will draw one hundred and ten pages, including a wonderful lot of pictures. In the book you will find a general description of what is to be seen in the park, of course. But that you could get from a guide book or an encyclopedia. So you turn over a page and learn that the National Park service has established an official bureau of information in a building near the superintendent's office in each park. For the use of tourists, free of all charges.

Rules and regulations, containing general information, of all national parks, and automobile maps of the Yellowstone National Park, are on hand for free distribution.

If you are interested in camping your expenses then will be so much for gas and oil, so much for food, so much for equipment, and a very small fee ($1.50 is the maximum) for a season ticket for your car in a park, and you have totaled your expenses. Some families camp all summer long, at an expense far less than they could live at home, and have a healthy, happy, enjoyable vacation at small cost. Others, less accustomed to depending upon themselves, tour from hotel to hotel and even that does not cost so much, albeit much more than frying one's own beans and bacon and diving in a suit of khaki.

BUILD AND LET BUILD

As far back as history begins, there have been persons who have stood in the way of progress, some for reasons of mercenary, others because of a real lack of vision or natural narrow tendencies.

It is a matter of record that the builders of the ancient cities and public monuments, some of which still exist were met by hundreds of obstacles placed in their way by visionless men, who did not have the future interests of their communities and the world at heart.

This same condition may be applied to our own community today.

We see opposition to things which would expedite business or cause an economic improvement or would in humanity's sake afford protection against sickness or the killing of hundreds of motorists or pedestrians. Here there should be no room for the obstructionist. Grayling is building a record of history, and there should be nothing at this time to hamper its progress.

The truly great men of all time is the builder, the one who produces or helps to produce. The parasite, who does nothing for himself or fellow-men is a cheat and the one who interferes with progress is little better.

"Build and let build" should be our motto and the future will comfortably arrange itself. There are many things to be done in the building up of a community. Ten men can do more than one and when these 10 men are arranged in team formation, their work can not only count much more than 10 times but, in fact, 20 times as much.

COOLIDGE WILL NOT BE 1928 CANDIDATE

President Amplifies Earlier "I Do Not Choose" With Definite "No."

Herald City, S. D.—All doubt as to just what President Coolidge meant when he said that he did not "choose" to be a candidate next year was removed in press conference and interviews with visitors.

The President means that he is through, that he will retire on March 4, 1929, and that another man will take his place. His statement was not a trial balloon or a piece of political maneuvering. Even though the convention next summer should insist on nominating him, he would still refuse to be a candidate.

To O. H. P. Shelley, former Republican national committeeman in Montana, and Frank Hazleback, present state chairman, who called at the executive office, the President is represented as having disclosed the thought back of his withdrawal announcement. When they urged him to reconsider the President is said to have replied: "There are plenty of other men in the party. Ten years is a long time to be President."

The President is cheerfully prepared to retire to a life of private work. It is already being predicted that he will be a Presidential candidate again in 1932, but the lingering hope which his friends held that he would reconsider his determination when the time came must now be abandoned.

A great load has been lifted from the mind of the President. Those close to him have noted it particularly. His nerves are relaxed. He greeted the press conference with a smile and a chuckle and asked how they had enjoyed the Wild West day at Deadwood.

He has not given serious thought as yet to what he will do when he retires from the Presidency. Work has usually come to him as fast as he believes he will not have to go out hunting a job in 1929.

His statement of a few days ago, in which he said he did not choose to run for President, has seemed to him so clear and definite that he does not know of any amplification he could make to it. His secretary, Everett Sanders, and his stenographer, Edwin Gessner, were the first to know of it. He explained, as it was necessary to have it typed, but it was his wish to confide it first to the members of the press.

In discussing the effects of the Geneva conference and the President again made his future plans clear, in an incidental way.

He had heard a rumor that he might call another disarmament conference in 1929, but stated there was no foundation for this.

There is not much time between January 1, 1929, and March 4, when he goes out of office, he pointed out, for such a conference, with submission of findings of a treaty, if there should be a treaty, to the senate for ratification. While he has no plan to call a conference of this character, his mind is not preoccupied on the subject, as circumstances might develop where such a meeting of the three powers might bring good results.

The President thinks it is too early now to judge the effects of the conference just held.

The failure of the conference to agree will not have any serious effect on the peace of the world, in the opinion of the President.

Before and After the Award

INTO THE ROUGH

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

THE caddies at the country place where we were staying were coming in from the links with their hands and pockets full of balls that they had picked up in the tall grass along the edges of the straightaway where the rough, uncultivated grass was growing. These rescued balls were the evidence of ambitions which had fallen short of anticipation, of a last effort which had not been recovered.

I walked along the rough, uncultivated edges of the smooth sward over which the players were wont to drive their balls. I watched the players as they drove off. The ball would make an apparently good start along the fair way and then curve off into the rough. The tall grass had been tramped over and pulled aside and examined with the most meticulous care, but it was not easy to find the ball once it got into the uncultivated grass and many a man had lost his game by an unexpected drive into the rough.

There are pitfalls and hazards and rough places which lie along the fair way of every man's life, all of which he must attempt to avoid, and if one treads at the outset, that is in youth to steer clear of them, he gains skill and adroitness and discovers how to address the ball, so to speak, so that there is less and less danger of his going into the rough. I do not know how very well, but I have watched the processes of life pretty closely and I am sure the analogy holds.

When I was a young boy he was very impulsive. Whatever came along he was willing to try at least once—gambling, drinking, and things that were worse. He made a great many friends, they had had little heed to the direction in which he was going. It was a case of thoughtless, careless driving into the rough.

He is a middle-aged man now, and his early habits have been continued. No matter how carefully he attempts to drive, the ball generally goes astray. He never learned control when learning would have been comparatively easy. He wasn't looking in the right direction, he didn't take the proper precautions, he followed carelessly and passionately his own impulses, and he had driven his whole life into the rough.

Franklin's finances have gone into the rough, and with all his seeking at fifty he is unable to recover the lost ball. This reason is pretty clear. He was not willing to advance slowly. He wanted to make a hole in one, as it were, to get rich quickly without the effort and the deliberate care which are necessary to safe and successful progress. He drove furiously without calculating either distance or direction. He invested in every get-rich-quick scheme which presented itself. He wanted to beat all his competitors around the course, and he went hopelessly into the rough as, under such circumstances, men are pretty certain to do.

NO MORE "DULL" SEASONS

Once an ingenious merchant discovered that the logical time to advertise was when business was slow and in the periodic dull seasons of the year. Ridiculous as it may seem, before that discovery the average business man slowed down in his advertising when business slowed down. He generally ended up the dull seasons with a quarterly sale, but as far as his newspaper advertising was concerned there was no advertising when there was no business.

The modern business man holds a different conception of the purposes and uses of newspaper advertising. When business is not up to his satisfaction he brings it up through increased advertising so that now the merchant, schooled in productive advertising, knows no dull seasons nor diminished business.

There are a few phases of business which have always been known to all business men. Among these are the alternating busy and dull periods of the year, month, week and day. A systematic, effective and economic plan of advertising had to be constructed upon a full knowledge of this business cycle. Business has become more without coaxing before Christmas, at Easter time, and in the fall. Extensive advertising has been found to be the only remedy for the business depression epidemic between these three rush periods. People have a habit of confining their shopping to the last of the month, the last three days of the week and the later shopping hours of the day.

From experience merchants have learned that newspaper advertising has successfully eliminated the rush periods and spread the volume of business more evenly over the day, week, month and year. It has prevented congestion, simplified salesmanship and merchandising and increased business.

Concrete Pavements "Stand the Gaff"

The Bates Road, built by Illinois Highway Officials to test pavements, contained 63 sections of three principal paving materials in various combinations and thicknesses. At the end of the tests, after 377,460 tons had passed—motor trucks gradually loaded until each rear wheel carried 8,000 pounds—only 13 sections remained undamaged.

Ten were portland cement concrete, the other three had heavy portland cement concrete foundations.

Concrete pavements are always level, smooth and rigid—safest in all weather. Remember these facts when roads or streets are to be paved in your community.
